PRESS RELEASE

Cybersmile and Twitter announce partnership

The Cybersmile Foundation and Twitter are teaming up to support users on Twitter with a dedicated support account to help people facing online abuse.

PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, JUNE 20, 2014 - The Cybersmile Foundation and Twitter announced today a new safety partnership that will encourage positive Digital Citizenship and educate users on how to be safe online.

Coinciding with the announcement, Cybersmile have launched their new verified @AskCybersmile account that will provide 24/7 online support for people experiencing cyberbullying related issues or have questions about abuse.

As part of Twitter's philanthropic efforts, the company is seeking to support users when they face online abuse or harassment with a number of selected organizations including Cybersmile - promoting a safer online environment for all internet users.

"We are delighted to begin this new safety partnership with Twitter that will help to address cyberbullying and online abuse where users will be able to seek help and guidance through our new @AskCybersmile support account," - Dan Raisbeck, Co-Founder, The Cybersmile Foundation.
